Bunnies and bonnets mark Kwaj Easter

By KW Hillis

Looking like large plots of bright flowers nestled in the short grass, the plastic candy-filled eggs, lollipops, and bags of jelly beans sat in the hot sun. High school students with bunny ears watched over the colorful bouquets.

It was over in less than five minutes. The grass was stripped of its colorful booty by small, marauding children dressed in their Easter best.

The annual Easter egg hunt Sunday, sponsored by Community Activities, brought out about 100 children and their parents, encumbered by

Team examines aviation services

By Pat Cataldo

A study team of experts with the U.S. Army Aviation and Missile Command and Space and Missile Defense Command spent most of last week at USAKA/KMR examining local aviation services. They were gathering information with which to make recommendations for 2003 and beyond.

"We had a good look at how business is done here," said team leader, Col. Robert Birmingham. "We saw first-hand what air travel means here and how missions can be affected."

He added, "We also got an understanding of just how corrosive this environment is. I don't think we would have had that same understanding without being here."

Birmingham is project manager of Aviation Systems AMCOM. Fellow team members were Lt. Col. Craig Robinson, deputy chief of staff for logistics, SMDC; Douglas Denno, senior engineer, SAIC; Tim Tolbert, senior analyst, CAS Inc.; and Martie Gimm, logistics management specialist, SMDC.

Among the factors taken into consideration while assessing aviation services are the age and status of the aircraft and the mix of helicopters and fixed-wing craft.

"The Dash-7s are accomplishing the task at hand," Birmingham said. "But they are old and expensive to maintain. They are probably not the choice for the future."

Also, the Army will retire the UH-1 (Huey) helicopters world-

Rustman is workout in preparation

By Peter Rejcek

Putting together the Rustman is almost as tough as competing in Kwajalein's famed triathlon.

"Planning goes back a couple of months. There's a lot of logistics," noted Ed Hillman, one of the chief event organizers and a Rustman competitor. "We're in good shape. It's been a busy last couple of weeks."

Nearly 30 volunteers will be stretched out along the race routes Monday when the Rustman kicks off at 4 p.m. with a one-kilometer swim, followed by a 42-kilometer bike ride, and a 10-kilometer run.

Kwajalein Running Club members, lifeguards, ham radio operators, Boy Scouts, and a host of other residents will help handle everything from traffic control to assisting cyclists make the transition from biking to running as wobbly legs readjust to pavement.

"The first few hundred yards of running after being on the bike for so long is a unique experience," noted Hillman, who is also KRC president.

Volunteers will also help ensure a safe race, particularly along Ocean Road, where pavement work is still underway. Hillman said spotters will be in place because race traffic will be coming in both directions — runners heading south along the clockwise route and cyclists speeding north as they finish their laps around the airport runway wide in 2007. If the study team recommends that helicopters remain a part of the USAKA/KMR aviation system, a different model will have to be selected.

"And then there is another question," Birmingham noted. "Is aviation the best way to handle daily business and mission requirements? If it isn't — what is best?"

The team has been researching the USAKA/KMR aviation situation for some time. Their visit here was mostly to validate the findings of their research. Their report is due June 1 to the SMDC and USAKA/KMR commanders.

Post office: Afternoon mail service to Roi most efficient

Question

I am concerned that mail is not being delivered promptly to Roi.

The last week of March Roi received mail Tuesday afternoon and some light mail, a few bags, Saturday. The Thursday ATI flight was delayed until Friday, so we should have had a lot more mail on Saturday than we did. Also, the Roi postal clerk "hand carried" a registered parcel on the Catamaran Friday morning, the parcel actually arrived on the Tuesday ATI flight, again, mail being held on Kwaj.

There was plenty of time to get mail from the Friday ATI to Roi on Saturday. I watched cargo being offloaded from the 5F Dash flight (1505) and there couldn't have been more than 100 pounds of cargo that came off that plane.

I checked my mail at lunch today only to find some catalogs, no packages or letter mail, very little mail sent to Roi. The postal clerk told me that the mail was "waiting for a flight!" Why wasn't the mail sent up Saturday?

Answer

Yes, we did send mail to Roi on Tuesday afternoon.

We receive the mail between 11:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays and from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturdays. We send Roi mail on the afternoon flight instead of waiting until the next morning so the clerk can sort it and put it out upon arriving to work the following day. Otherwise, she would have to wait until we send the mail on the morning flight, if room is available.

The flight on Thursday, March 30, was delayed 24 hours because of mechanical problems. We were waiting for a flight for the mail — but from Honolulu, not Kwajalein. The following day the plane did fly, and we received two pallets of mail, about 5,000 pounds. We sent 27 pieces to Roi, weighing 457 pounds on Friday, March 30.

On Saturday, April 1, the mail was bumped for hazardous cargo, so we only received registered mail that day.

The piece of registered mail you mentioned was received on Tuesday. It was not put on the plane because the clerk would not have been at the Post Office to sign for it. We were closed on Wednesday. The clerk signed for it on Thursday and the customer picked it up on Friday.

I understand your concerns with mail deliveries to Roi-Namur; however, sending Roi mail on the late afternoon flight is the most efficient way for residents to receive mail. Contrary to the statement in your Hotline call, we never give excuses for mail delivery; we are proud of the service we provide and welcome any comments or suggestions on how we can improve our service.

RIOT raises reading habits of youngsters

By KW Hillis

There is a RIOT in progress at George Seitz Elementary school, but don't send in the SWAT team or call the media.

The Reading Instead of Television (RIOT) program is in full swing this spring.

From March 1 to the book fair in May, a Spring 2000 Reading Challenge is going on. Elementary students are trying to read 2,000 books during that time. They have read 1,500 books so far, according to Abbie Seibert, PTO RIOT chairperson.

"The number of books read by students since March 1 is pretty extraordinary since it's over and above school requirements," Seibert said.

According to Cris Laytham, Kwajalein Schools library media specialist, less than half of the children in school are participating in the challenge.

Laytham said that the most voracious readers are kindergarteners Daniel Lemmond, Erica Gordon, Lizzie Seibert, Apple Seibert, and Maddie Seibert; first-grader Zachary Gordon; and second-grader Emily Lemmond.

The program requires each child to submit a list after reading 10 books in kindergarten through third grade or five books in fourth through sixth grades. There is no set reading list.

The reward for a completed list is a coupon worth $1 for purchases at the book fair.

The program has a lot of fans.

"I like to read," said fourth-grader Justin DeCoster, 10. "I started reading when I was 2. Well, I looked at picture books. I really like Harry Potter books. J.K. Rowling is my favorite author."

First-grader Marisa Godfrey had to think some before she could come up with one type of book she liked. "I like a lot of books. Oh, and I really like Spot books."

Even with the love of reading ingrained, other interests take hold as the children get older.

"No sixth-graders have turned in lists. Only a couple of fifth-graders, and a handful of fourth-graders [have participated]. Most of the readers are in kindergarten through third grade. Television and other interests, including homework, take over," Laytham said.

Libby Maynard, one of the few fifth-graders to turn in lists, agreed that she lacks time to read during the week, doing most of her reading on weekends.

Book lists for the 2000 challenge are still being accepted, according to Abbie Seibert.

"I think a lot more books have been read, but the children just haven't turned in their lists," she said.

Dash-7 maintenance puts ferries to work

From Marine Department

While the Dash-7 is still scheduled to be in phased maintenance Tuesday, the Kwaj/Ebeye ferry schedule will stay the same, with the exception of the CAT #2 runs.

There will be a 6 a.m. run to Ebeye, and then CAT #2 will depart for Roi at 7 a.m. There will be no second CAT #2 run to Ebeye.

The Meck ferry will operate as normally scheduled.

All Ebeye employees should catch earlier LCM ferry runs on that day in order to get to work on time, versus waiting for the last runs in the morning.

One reminder: there are no scheduled Kwaj/Roi ferry runs on April 30 or May 1.

Updated Roi commuter recorded information can be obtained by calling 56331.

National Day of Prayer to be recognized May 4

By KW Hillis

The 49th annual National Day of Prayer will begin with a mid-night prayer Thursday.

The Rev. John Dorr, Protestant chaplain, and his congregation are organizing a prayer vigil. According to Dorr, the purpose of the vigil is to have at least one person praying for the nation, its people, and its leaders all day.

"All faiths on the island are encouraged to organize their own observances or are welcome to attend ours," Dorr said.

Maj. David Latham, a USAKA/KMR test director, will be the speaker at a special luncheon at the Yokwe Yuk Club at 11:30 a.m. Thursday.

"We hope that island residents of all faiths will join us for this event," Dorr added.

At 6 p.m. that night, Father William J. Sullivan, SJ Catholic chaplain, and Dorr will sponsor a joint prayer service in the chapel.

"Various speakers, recounting what prayer has meant in their lives, will participate in the service. In addition, the lights will be on at the chapel for the entire 24 hours for anyone who would like to drop by and pray," Dorr said.

National Day of Prayer is an annual event established in 1952 by an act of Congress and signed by President Harry Truman.

National Day of Prayer has a history that precedes Congress' proclamation. The Continental Congress called for one in 1775. Abraham Lincoln, in the midst of the Civil War, saw the need for a national day of prayer in 1863. In 1988, President Ronald Reagan signed an amendment to the law, establishing the first Thursday in May as the official day of observance.

Quilts stitch together Kwajalein and ABC babies

Handmade crafts benefit at-risk newborns in Hawaii

By KW Hillis

A fanciful Noah's Ark, fabric flowers real enough to pick, and crayon-bright geometric designs, all stitched with care on baby quilts, decorated the walls of CAC Room 7 Tuesday night.

But a scrapbook packed with thank-you notes held the place of honor during the gathering of Kwaj Kwilters. For the last seven years, the group has donated quilts to Hawaiian hospitals and clinics through a charitable organization.

"Your quilts are a gift of beauty, comfort and love to those who most need it and will be most appreciated by our families and their little ones," wrote Child and Family Service in Oahu.

According to Patti Mathwig, At-risk Babies Crib (ABC) Quilts co-chair, the club has been lucky in getting a note from each hospital or clinic that receives their annual donation of baby quilts.

"We don't know what hospital or clinic will receive the quilts. We send them to ABC Quilts. They determine which facility needs them. So we don't know unless we receive a note from the staff," Mathwig said.

About 40 people enjoyed comparing and examining the 30 quilts that will be sent to ABC Quilts next month.

Hung on all four walls and on the edges of tables, each small quilt sported a piece of paper indicating the volunteer's name along with other pertinent information, such as how long they had been a Kwaj Kwilter and the name of the quilt.

The colorful Noah's Ark quilt was sent by a former Kwaj Kwilter who left Kwaj to move to Japan in November.

"I received the quilt from Sallie Donahue a few weeks ago. I always ask people who are members and are PCSing to send their quilts. She actually did. She was in the club for about seven years so she knows when we send them in," Mathwig said.

In addition to individual quilting, Mathwig and ABC co-chair, Jean Culberson, organized an annual all-day quilting marathon in February. Dedicated to the ABC Quilt project, 12 women, some for a block of time, some all day long, started several of the displayed baby quilts during the marathon.

ABC Quilts was founded by Ellen Ahlgren in 1988. She was moved by an article about the plight of HIV/AIDS infected babies who are orphaned or abandoned, forced to live out their short lives in a hospital.

Knowing her nine grandchildren loved the quilts she had made, Ahlgren's idea was to get people all over the country to volunteer to make quilts for the babies. She contacted the director of Pediatric AIDS at Boston City Hospital. The enthusiastic response spurred her to start ABC Quilts.

The outpouring of quilts year after year has enabled ABC Quilts to add abandoned babies and those born affected by drugs to the list of recipients.

Quilts are sent throughout the United States and to other countries via special outreach projects.

In 1989, 100 quilts were sent to HIV/AIDS infected babies in Moscow. In 1990, ill babies in Romania received 1,700 quilts.

Quilts are received not only from groups like Kwaj Kwilters, but also from individuals, young and old.

To participate in the project, a person doesn't have to be a master quilter or even know anything about quilting.

"That's the first quilt I ever made. The one with the yellow zigzag," Gail Choquette said proudly, pointing to a multicolored geometric quilt in the corner.

Your quilts are a gift of beauty, comfort, and love to those who most need it and will be appreciated by our families and their little ones.

YYWC welcomes visitors from Majuro Saturday

By Pat Cataldo

Members of the Yokwe Yuk Women's Club will welcome 25 Majuro club members arriving Saturday on Continental for a three-day exchange visit.

Club members of Kwajalein and Majuro have been exchanging annual visits for about the past 10 years, with the goal of learning more about each other's culture and lives.

The first activity of the festive weekend is a potluck barbecue at the Pacific Club, beginning at 6:30 p.m., featuring live music, dancing, and games.

Dianne Tarnstrom, Exchange Committee chairwoman, reminds YYWC members that those whose last names begin with A-M are to bring salads, and those whose names begin with N-Z are to bring desserts.

After a weekend crammed with activities, including a craft show and a progressive dinner, the visitors depart Monday.

School council approves revised home-school rules

By Barbara Johnson

In a unanimous vote, policy revisions for home-schooled children were approved at the School Advisory Council Meeting April 19, according to Karen Ammann, superintendent of schools.

The revised policy, which clarifies reporting requirements and adds a release of liability, was passed with no discussion after a second reading at the meeting.

Ammann said the new policy, written to conform to Hawaiian home-school statutes and to meet the requirements of USAKA/KMR and Kwajalein schools, doesn't mean major changes for home-schoolers at Kwaj.

Ammann also said that surveys are being sent out to help predict school enrollment for next year.

At the May 17 School Advisory Council meeting, a complete staffing report will be given, and awards will be presented to teachers and advisory council members who have made outstanding contributions to the schools during the year.

cameras and video equipment.

"The whole event lasted only a half an hour, but everyone had fun," said Susu Sasano, youth activities supervisor.

"Filled Easter baskets were awarded to children who found small fuzzy chicks in 14 golden eggs. As an added surprise, 100 of the eggs had a number inside. The children who found them received a miniature stuffed toy," Sasano said.

The Easter egg coloring contest filled Ten-Ten early Friday evening for the awards ceremony.

The Easter Bunny surprised, delighted, and scared some small visitors.

Dot Martin, Ten-Ten data input coordinator, handed out large Easter baskets filled to the brim with goodies for the first and second place winners in the three age categories.

First place: Noah Gandy, 1, in the 1- to 3-year-old category; Aubrey Sanborn, 6, and Kaula Kaluhiokalani, 4, tied in the 4- to 7-year-old category; and Andrea Morrison, 9, in the 8- to 12-year-old group.

Second place: Steve Miller, 3; Curtis Lojkar, 7; and Michelle Lopez, 10.

Water polo season nearing final climax

By Peter Rejcek

The second half of inner tube water polo season got underway this week as the eight teams split into two divisions in preparation for the playoffs.

Chargoggaoggogaag (6-1), Water Moccasins (6-1), Algae (5-2), and Stingrays (4-2-1) finished with winning records and will comprise the A Division. Environmental (3-3-1), Rookies (2-5), Enforcers (1-6), and Sea Monkeys (0-7) will round out the B Division.

Ian West, Community Activities pools and beaches coordinator, said there is no clear dominant team in either division, though he expects a strong showing from both Chargoggaoggogaag and Water Moccasins.

"They have a lot of seasoned veterans out there," he said, but added the championship is very much "up in the air."

In B Division, most of the teams are getting their feet (and the rest of their bodies) wet for the first time. Again, no clear leader has emerged. The Sea Monkeys, in particular, are looking to improve on a dismal 0-7 record as team members learn the proverbial ropes.

West said teams are now required to use their original roster for the remainder of the season. In the first half, teams short on players could recruit out of the stands. That option won't be available as tensions rise with the playoffs only a week away.

"It's more fun that way," West added.

Rustman attracts different athletes ...

and head to the start line for the run.

Helmets are required for the cycling portion of the Rustman.

About 20 to 25 individual athletes are expected to compete in the 21st annual Rustman, with about 15 teams of two or three members, bringing the total field to over 50 participants.

Pre-registered contestants must check-in at Emon Beach Pavilion #1 no later than 3:15 p.m. A portable computer will be at the beach to compile statistics on a spreadsheet. Final standings will be available moments after the final contestant crosses the finish line.

"It's kind of a mad dash," Hillman said.

Sharon Greenbaum, who posted the second best time ever for a woman competitor, with a finish of 2:23:01 in 1999, is considered a frontrunner to win this year's competition. Hillman said also to keep an eye on 59-year-old Larry Krone and crowd favorite Peter Barbella, who perennially rides a one-speed bike into the brutal winds that swirl around the airport runway.

Barbella noted that when he first rode his one-speed bike 11 years ago, about half the competitors used similar wheels. But over the years habits changed — except for a few.

"I'm a person of habit," Barbella admitted.

Even those cyclists using high-tech, high-dollar bikes — and anything less — are hoping the trade winds chill for a day.

"We are praying to the wind gods to take this Monday off," Hillman joked, adding most participants are tapering off their training routines this week as race day approaches.

"The people who train for this have been training for months and months and months," he noted.

While the spotlight shines brightest on the individual competitors, teamwork has been a staple of the Rustman since 1990. Last year's winners — Ray Fogg, Guy Schwarz, and Thomas Cardillo — set the record in the team category with a time of 2:04:26.

Comics tickle funny bones on Kwaj, Roi

By Peter Rejcek

Believe it or not, Joe Restivo was the class clown when he was a kid. Well, it's probably not so hard to believe after laughing hysterically to his rapid, rapier wit this weekend.

Restivo was one of a trio of comics who entertained residents on Roi-Namur and Kwajalein.

Restivo, a 20-year stand-up veteran, got his first break early in life.

"I made my parents laugh," he said. It wasn't long — well, maybe a few years — until The Tonight Show started using his jokes.

Joining Restivo on stage were Jeff Capri and Lori Weiss. Kwaj was the last stop on a tour that had taken the comedians to Singapore, Diego Garcia, Guam, and Kosrae.

Capri noted one big difference between stateside and overseas audiences as his Pacific tour wound down, "The audience here is more appreciative."

While ribald, the comedians' routines never reached for raunchy to steal a laugh. The material seemed fresh, with contemporary references that didn't often confuse an audience normally a step behind stateside pop culture.

"I didn't change one line I normally do," Restivo said.
